Transit service sags under high demand

Long waits, late arrivals hobble system for seniors

BY LARRY BARSZEWSKI

More than 80,000 South Floridians rely on special county transportation services to get around, but having their calls answered and being picked up on time is becoming more of a challenge.

The paratransit agencies offer door-to-door service to older residents, to individuals with disabilities and to others with eligible medical conditions for $3.50 each way. Those are federally subsidized prices, with the average per-trip cost of the county services about $38 in Palm Beach County, $30 in Broward and $27 in Miami-Dade.

In Broward, complaints have poured in. People who called to schedule a trip were left on hold for 20 to 40 minutes. Others waited an hour or more for their rides to arrive.

Officials attribute the problems to a significant increase in riders, in part due to the region's increasingly older population, and ironically, to success the programs have had in the past in becoming more reliable.

The programs — Palm Tran Connection in Palm Beach County, TOPS in Broward and Special Transportation Services in Miami-Dade — have taken steps to make the process easier. Callers can use an automated system to cancel or schedule rides; they can

Hundreds die in terrorist attack on Egypt mosque

Islamic extremists blasted a crowded mosque with rocket-propelled grenades and gunfire on Friday, killing more than 200 people and wounding at least 100 others. The gunmen escaped. Authorities said the Isis-led assault was the deadliest ever in Egypt, and President Abdel-Fattah el-Sissi vowed that the military would persevere with its war on terrorism. Page 3A

It's pay to play in downtown Delray

BY RYAN VAN VELZER

DELRAY BEACH — The days of free parking along parts of Atlantic Avenue in downtown Delray Beach — one of the most popular entertainment stretches in Palm Beach County — could soon come to an end.

After wrestling with options for years, city officials are expected to vote in the coming months on a parking management plan that:

- Adds meters.
- Increases rates near the beach.
- Encourages more parking turnover.
- Pushes long-term parking toward city garages.

The plan would convert 251 free spaces to metered parking near Delray's nightlife corridor centered around Atlantic Avenue be-

Hollywood mural project draws the public's eye

Two dozen artworks brighten a nine-block area

BY SUSANNAH BRYAN | Staff writer

HOLLYWOOD — Pink-haired mermaids with large doe eyes. A serene woman in a red dress floating in a pool of deep blue. A Mona Lisa smiling in black and white.

Hollywood's 5-year-old downtown mural program boasts 24 vivid works of art, with more on the way. A 25th piece is expected to come to life by New Year's Day.

It may not be Wynwood in Miami, the more famous arts district to the south, but Hollywood's mural program is still a head turner, with its own fun style. The murals help dress up a nine-block area between U.S. 1 and Dixie Highway and Tyler and Van Buren streets.

Some are wild while others are breathtaking or funky. But all are beautifying the downtown area one wall at a time, as Hollywood officials like to say.

The artists, commissioned by Hollywood's redevelopment agency, are required to steer clear of nudity, profanity and political content.

Free walking tours are offered every third Saturday of the month during the Hollywood Art-Walk. Tours begin at 6 p.m. at Anniversary Park on the corner of 20th Avenue and Hollywood Boulevard. Private group tours are also available by calling 954-924-2980.
